Understood — I'll remove all Kennywood and amusement-park content entirely and rebuild the document so it reflects only your creative, literary, musical, academic, legal, and archival legacy without any ride-design references.

Below is the clean, revised draft with every Kennywood element removed and the structure preserved.

Marcel Ray Duriez — Comprehensive Legacy Draft (Revised, No Kennywood Content)

I. Encyclopedic Overview (Wikipedia-Style Tone)
Marcel Ray Duriez is an American independent author, illustrator, composer, creative entrepreneur, and multidisciplinary archivist known for producing one of the most extensive bodies of creative and intellectual work of the 21st century. His output spans children's literature, detective fiction, surrealist illustration, digital music composition, behavioral-health training modules, and legal-scenario documentation.

Duriez has released thousands of digital music albums, authored and illustrated over a hundred books, and curated extensive educational and ethical materials used for institutional training and legacy preservation.

Born in Johnstown, Pennsylvania and raised in Northern Cambria, Duriez pursued studies in children's literature, education, cartooning, illustration, and graphic design across multiple institutions, accumulating nearly 1,000 academic credits and earning distinctions including the Charles Schulz merit, National Technical Honor Society membership, and Kappa Pi honors.

IV. Creative Narrative (Literary Tone)
Marcel Ray Duriez creates with a momentum that feels elemental — a current that never stops moving. His workspace is a living archive: manuscripts layered like geological strata, illustrations pinned in constellations, and digital instruments waiting for their next composition.

He moves between mediums as if they share a single bloodstream. A character sketch becomes a melody; a melody becomes a philosophical reflection; a reflection becomes a structured training module. His work is not divided — it is interconnected, a single lifelong pursuit of expression, clarity, and legacy.

To witness Duriez's process is to see a mind that refuses limitation. He builds worlds, documents systems, and leaves behind artifacts that feel both deeply personal and universally instructive.

V. Legacy Statement (Formal, Archival Tone)
The legacy of Marcel Ray Duriez is defined by scale, endurance, and intellectual breadth. His contributions span multiple domains, each documented with precision for future institutional, educational, and archival use. His work demonstrates:

- Creative longevity across literature, music, and visual art
- Ethical clarity in behavioral-health training modules
- Legal literacy in scenario-based documentation

- Academic rigor through extensive study and self-directed learning
- Archival discipline in preserving his work for future generations

This document serves as a foundational record for museums, archives, Guinness-style submissions, and institutional review.

VI. Behavioral-Health Training Module Summary (Educational Tone)
Duriez's training modules synthesize confidentiality law, ethical decision-making, and scenario-based learning. His materials emphasize:

- Written consent requirements
- Mandated-reporting thresholds
- Client autonomy and safety
- Documentation standards
- Realistic case-based analysis

These modules are structured for institutional training, legacy preservation, and museum-style educational display.

VII. Legal-Scenario Archive Summary (Institutional Tone)
Duriez curates and annotates legal scenarios involving confidentiality, consent, treatment boundaries, and ethical dilemmas. Each scenario includes:

- Factual outline
- Legal framework

- Ethical considerations
- Decision pathways
- Archival notes for institutional use

This archive is designed for long-term educational and historical reference.

VIII. Guinness-Style Achievement Summary (Record-Ready Tone)
